THEY LET THE TOWN HALL BURN

BY SAMUEL B. POTTENGI

Democratic Representative in Congress for the Third Indiana District, 1930-1934.

A son home from college said, "Father, I hate to tell you this, but I've become a Socialist." His father said, "That's all right, son, when I got through school thirty years ago I said the same thing. But we were all at the town hall one evening when a house caught fire and it looked as if it would clean out the whole village."

I hope the day may soon come when every man who is willing to work may have for himself and his family a home of his own and a garden with hollyhocks along the wall, and a place for his children to play in the sun. And enough saved and safe to provide for "the years of the locust."

And because we want just that, we want to help restore and preserve freedom, economic and political, "to ourselves and our posterity."

"I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience," said Patrick Henry. And so "let's look at the record." Let us compare the United States, still chiefly under free enterprise, with the second greatest land power in the world—Germany, under National Socialism, its debts nearly all wiped out by repudiation, and so starting with a clean slate.

Both Germany and the United States touched low in 1932. 1937 was the best year since then in both countries. In the same currency (dollars) American income was $537, German income, $421.

We have heard much about Sweden—"The Middle Way"—the halfway house between free enterprise and state control. The per capita income in Sweden in 1937 was $350, or only two-thirds as good as ours.

In 1938 we almost equaled Germany in per capita taxes—$108 to $110. In per cent of taxes taken from national income in 1938, we showed 23.2 percent; Germany, 26.2, giving her politicians a slightly larger fraction of the nation's wealth to demonstrate the glories of National Socialism than ours had.

As against this, however, it must be stated that we increased our debt and mortgaged our future faster and heavier than did Germany.

Let us compare the United States, whose enterprise is still predominately free, and Germany, where politicians control nearly every decision. For the year 1936 we find:

	U. S.	Germany
Oil, per capita	425.0 gal.	2.5 gal.
Kw. of electricity	300	3.50
Death rate in first year	1 in 13	1 in 15
Wheat per capita	4.8 bu.	4.3 bu.
Wool per capita	1.5 lbs.	2.4 lbs.
Cash per capita	17.5 tons	314.0 tons
Steel per capita	417.0 lbs.	1.6 lbs.
Copper per capita	10.0 lbs.	302 lbs.
Pig iron per capita	342 lbs.	—
Bank deposits per capita	423 dollars (1935)	—
Debtors	1 for 265 persons	1 for 1,180 persons

So much for the creature comforts of life. But man lives not by bread alone. As the super state has extended its control over human lives what do we find—a barracks room civilization.

We see one-party rule crushing all opposition; the radio and movie state dominated; the church in handcuffs; all education regimented from the kindergarten to the university; labor unions destroyed; their treasuries confiscated; the health of her people cracking under the intense Spartan discipline and the neglect of political doctors; the courts packed; justice the tool of the party boss; hours of work lengthened; wages decreased; strikes abolished; insurance largely run by the politicians; freedom to marry restricted; legitimacy made honorable; science, art, music and the theater prostituted to the pre-conceived notions of party and race; compulsory labor service (freedom to the state); public office

WILLKIE RAPS ROOSEVELT FOR WHAT HE TERMS "BOONDOGGING NEGLECT"

22 Nazi Planes Downed in Attack on London

British Place Own Losses at Seven Planes

Portsmouth Naval Base Is Attacked Twice in One Day

ASSAULT IS STAMPED UNSUCCESSFUL BY BRITONS

In Return the British Claim Widespread Damage to Enemy

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP)—Germany sent hundreds of fighters and fighter-bombers against London and the Portsmouth naval base today and tonight in a costly revival of massed squadron assault.

Four times today and again tonight London was besieged from the air; twice, Portsmouth was attacked. But by night the British announced they had shot down twenty-two German planes, the most they have claimed in many days, as compared to a loss of seven of their own.

It was London's fifty-third consecutive night of siege. With the German squadrons came at least nine heavy bombers believed to be Italian. They were accompanied, British said, by sixty Messerschmitt fighters and were turned away from the Kent coast by anti-aircraft fire.

Official reports detailed only the civilian damage; at Portsmouth, for instance, a communiqué said "several houses and shops" were wrecked and "a small number of persons killed" in the evening attack.

In the day attack on Portsmouth, officials said, anti-aircraft guns and fighters broke up the raiding squadrons and the assault was stamped "unsuccessful."

Tonight, in London, even flares dropped by the attackers were machine-gunned before they could serve as beacons for bomb sighters.

Earlier in the night of thousands of Londoners, British ground guns shot down a raider over Hyde Park, in the very center of the city.

The Air Ministry news service reported that in a 10-minute battle fought at 300 miles an hour over Kent a Scottish auxiliary squadron shot down eight Messerschmitt fighter-bombers of a group of fifty which tried in vain to reach London.

Few raiders penetrated to the center of the capital. A packet of incendiary bombs fell in one road; in another high explosives smashed a number of residences.

The Air Ministry announced that British bombers had made "heavy and successful" raids last night (Continued on Page Two)

Formation of Maryland State Guard Is Announced by Governor O'Connor

Will Consist of Approximately 2,000 Officers and Enlisted Men

BALTIMORE, Oct. 29 (AP)—Asserting Maryland "is ready for anything that may ensue" in the world crisis, Governor O'Connor today announced plans for the formation of a Maryland State Guard of approximately 2,000 officers and enlisted men.

He disclosed his plan at a luncheon given by the Rotary Club of Baltimore, declaring "it is high time we give attention to the first law of nature, which is self-preservation."

O'Connor said the guard would be approximately one-half the strength of the present Maryland National Guard. It would be in charge of a director of public safety for state defense.

No date for its formation was given. The guard would be a regiment of infantry units exclusively, he explained.

Roosevelt Plans Whirlwind Finish To His Campaign

President Will Speak in Boston Tonight and in Brooklyn Friday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP)—Moving into a whirlwind finish of his third campaign trip, President Roosevelt mapped out today a long train and motor tour of New England starting from Washington tonight and ending with a major address at Boston tomorrow night.

At first the White House indicated some doubt as to whether Mr. Roosevelt would make the trip in view of European developments, but late this afternoon Stephen Early, presidential secretary, told reporters:

"The secretary of state has advised the president that, as the situation stands, as of the moment, there is nothing that requires action tomorrow."

Early added that the president would contact Secretary Hull from Springfield, Mass., and other points enroute.

Tentative plans call for the chief executive to make platform appearances at New Haven, and Worcester, and to inspect an airplane engine plant at Hartford and the army arsenal at Springfield.

Mr. Roosevelt's train route also will take him through Wallingford, Meriden and New Britain Junction, Conn., and Framingham, Mass.

After the Boston speech, only three major addresses remain on Mr. Roosevelt's schedule, at Brooklyn, Friday night; Cleveland, Saturday night and by radio from his Hyde Park home Monday night.

Willkie Speaks To Women of America

Anything Which Curtails Production "Curtails Freedom," He Says

IRONTON, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today that "never until recently did we consider regulation more important than freedom."

Speaking from his special train in a broadcast addressed to the women of America he declared that anything which curtailed production "curtails our freedom."

"We must all be free to build the America that we want," he added.

"Our future America must be seen and successful," he said (Continued on Page Two)

Joseph P. Kennedy Says FDR Is Not Getting Us in War

Brands Charge as "False" and Asks for Roosevelt's Reelection

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy tonight branded as "false" a charge that President Roosevelt was trying to involve this country in the war abroad and called for his reelection as the man who "can best serve the nation."

Kennedy, who made a hurried return by clipper plane Sunday from England, spoke over a nationwide network of the Columbia Broadcasting System in a program sponsored by his wife and nine children.

He denied there was a secret commitment by the president to Great Britain to lead the United States into war, saying:

"If President Roosevelt were as wicked as his opponents charge, which he is not, and even if he had undisclosed commitments, which he has not, the facts are against our participation in this war."

The ambassador asserted that in his post as representative of the American people in London, he "would certainly become aware" of any such commitment and that he (Continued on Page Two)

Koppers Company Executive Succumbs

LEESBURG, Va., Oct. 29 (AP)—William F. Rust, 66, who rose from an apprenticeship to executive vice president of the Koppers Company before retiring several years ago, died today.

He also was former president of the Alan Wood Steel Company and Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, Koppers Company affiliates.

Born near Leesburg, Rust went to Pittsburgh at seventeen as an apprentice in the shops of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Later he attended Lehigh University. After working for a number of steel firms, he became chief engineer and then general superintendent of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company. He returned to Pittsburgh in 1915, as Koppers' chief engineer.

Fascist Sources Hint at Impending Axis Offensives

Belief Is Expressed That Troops May Be Aiming at the Dardanelles

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ROME, Oct. 29 (AP)—Fascist sources hinted tonight at impending Axis military and diplomatic offensives on a far larger scale than the two-day-old invasion of Greece which the Italian people heard about only today.

A high command communiqué was the first Italian report that Fascist forces had moved at dawn yesterday against the Greek frontier.

All it said was that the "advance is continuing" and that important Greek bases were bombed. Diplomatic circles reported that Italian troops had driven ten miles toward Florence, on the way to Salonika at the top of the Aegean sea.

Belief was expressed in foreign circles that the Axis may be aiming as far as the Dardanelles.

Some observers said negotiations between the Rome-Berlin partners and Moscow were the probable next major moves, intended to keep Soviet Russia out of the Balkans by offering her a free hand in Iran, Afghanistan, and, possibly, India.

Others looked toward pressure on Portugal.

If Portugal, like Spain and France, tied up with the Axis, they pointed out, it would be able to make the West coast of both Europe and Africa a hostile front for any British—and, possibly, American landing parties.

The usually authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, suggested forthcoming action towards the East without indicating whether it would be military or diplomatic.

One outcome of the Florence meeting of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini widely predicted is direct negotiations for a peace settlement between Italy and France.

James Stewart First Movie Star Whose Number Was Called

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29 (AP)—James Stewart, a bachelor, was the first top ranking movie star whose number received a draft call today.

Stewart's number, 126, was three hundred and ninth to be drawn. The actor is a civilian pilot with many years in the air. A native of Indiana, Pa., he was mentioned last year for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, "Oscar" for his performance as a congressman in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

When Secretary Stimson drew 153 as the first number in the draft lottery yesterday, he got for his army (unless they are defeated):

Two Chinese in the No. 1 draft district of the country's two largest cities, New York, and Chicago.

A man in Tacoma, Wash., whose brother held the second number draw, 192.

A Washington plumber's helper whose parents happened to be in the auditorium for the drawing.

Two Cleveland newspaper reporters, and an Associated Press operator in Los Angeles.

Says President Overruled Experts Last January Who Requested Defense Funds

Willkie Refers To Liberty Bell in Speaking About Husky Voice

JACKSON, O., Oct. 29 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie laughingly told a Republican rally today that his husky voice might crack at times, but he added:

"I want to recall to your mind that the liberty bell also cracked."

The Republican presidential nominee became hoarse last week, and a heavy speaking schedule has kept his voice from clearing.

The Republican presidential nominee in a speech prepared for a rally at Charleston, city auditorium, asserted that Mr. Roosevelt had "overruled the experts" last January and had requested only a $250,000,000 increase for defense purposes over the previous fiscal year.

Actually, Willkie said, "It was necessary for Congress to provide appropriations and contract authorizations over $10,000,000,000 more than the president asked for in January. Thus x x x he was only one-fortieth right."

In a radio speech (NBC red network) from his private car later in the evening, Willkie asserted that President Roosevelt had "passed the buck" on defense in his address at Madison Square Garden last night.

Willkie, adding to his prepared radio talk said that at present this country had "only one ambassador in the four great capitals of Europe—London, Berlin, Rome and Moscow, and that ambassador is in Moscow."

Should Keep Envoys at Posts

He said that "one of our ambassadors who has been on our shores only a few hours" had contended that the nation should not change administrations "until Hitler permits by stepping down from power."

Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, made a radio speech earlier in the evening in support of Mr. Roosevelt.

Willkie said that if he were elected president he would see to it that ambassadors in all major European capitals were filled "by permanent representatives of the United States wherever placed."

Instead of fulfilling defense needs he declared the president had concentrated upon "the writing of 'must pass' messages concerning primarily with highly experimental domestic legislation."

"Thanks largely to the theories of unseen New Deal brain trusters, much of that legislation has created great domestic confusion. It has hobbled the American productive system, at the very time when we needed to strengthen it for a long-term defense program."

"I say that the third term candidate can not 'pass the buck' on the issue of defense."

Willkie said it might be argued interminably as to whether Mr. Roosevelt had "fought an incessant battle with the Republicans to build up our national defense."

"You could take all the Congressional records and read them for weeks and weeks," he continued. "Yet you would still arrive at the conclusion that the New Deal party had the votes and that we haven't got the guns."

Willkie declared that "the candidate for the third term unfairly states that we oh side have suddenly been 'too long' him on the question of aid to Britain."

His consistent position, Willkie continued has been that he wanted to put behind Britain a "revitalized" American industry.

"I have tried to keep aid for Britain out of politics," Willkie continued. "The president tossed it into politics last night."

Charges Third Term Candidate "Passed the Buck" on Defense in Madison Square Garden Speech

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 29 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie accused the Roosevelt administration tonight of "boondoggling neglect" in building a national defense and declared that the third term candidate "keeps our safety on order."

The Republican presidential nominee in a speech prepared for a rally at Charleston, city auditorium, asserted that Mr. Roosevelt had "overruled the experts" last January and had requested only a $250,000,000 increase for defense purposes over the previous fiscal year.

Hague Testifies Before Senate Committee

Investigation Aimed at Beating Roosevelt in State, He Says

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28. (P)—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, testifying at a turbulent hearing of a United States Senate subcommittee today, denounced its inquiry into charges of election irregularities in New Jersey as a "ten cent political" investigation aimed at beating President Roosevelt in the state.

Subpoenaed by the subcommittee on campaign expenditures after he declined to appear voluntarily, the vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee engaged in numerous verbal attacks on Senator Tobey, (R-NH) whom he called a "wild man" and a "lunatic who should be in a mental hospital."

During a series of questions in which Tobey sought to obtain from Hague the sources of his income, which Tobey said far exceeded his salary as Mayor, Hague shouted counter-charges about Tobey's alleged "phony stocks."

"You're silly and acting like a child, you just can't take it," Tobey said to the witness.

"Not from a lunatic who should be in a mental hospital," Hague answered.

So much of the two hour session was consumed by recriminations and arguments that little time was left to the question of vote fraud.

The subcommittee adjourned until after the elections at a date not announced.

Tobey said the cheers and laughter made it "obvious that this audience is part and parcel of a Frank Hague professional clique."

Charles A. Rooney, counsel to Hague, instructed the mayor not to answer questions about his private income.

Hague, frowning a ring when not gestulating freely with his hands, once broke in to say:

"How long have we got to endure this? It's so silly."

At other times he would interrupt Tobey with the remarks: "Louder, Senator, louder," "you shouting like a mad man," or "oh, let him rave."

When Tobey referred to previous testimony given by John F. O'Neill, a Hudson county Democratic employee, to the effect that he (O'Neill) believed Hague made his money in 1925 when a "rich man financed him on the stock market," and asked Hague what he thought about that story, the mayor shrugged his shoulders and said:

"What a crude man that O'Neill is, he's not very well, sir."

"Has anything happened to Mr. O'Neill since that testimony?" Tobey asked.

"Listen to him," retorted Hague.

The nattily dressed mayor testified earlier that he had done everything to assure "cleanness of elections and politics in Hudson county."

Flynn and Martin Both Are Claiming New York State

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (P)—Following President Roosevelt's intensive non-day campaign in the New York city area, Democratic leaders today revised their estimates of the president's margin of victory in his home state and Republicans countered with a "we're in" slogan.

At the same time, both groups assailed anxiously the president's return here for a major address in Brooklyn Friday night and Wendell L. Willkie's talk Saturday night in a Republican windup campaign rally at Madison Square Garden.

Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, said "there's no doubt about it; it won't be close," and added that the margin he expected for the president would increase as a result of his appearances in New York city.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican chief, said "the final effect of the campaigning in the Metropolitan area is that we are going to carry the state."

"We'll wind up emphatically with the state and emphatically with the national election," Martin declared, "we're in."

U. S. Ships Norway Bombers to Canada

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 29. (P)—Douglas Aircraft Corporation officials today said bombers ordered by the Norwegian Government are being delivered in Canada. Commander Kristian Osby, head of the Royal Norwegian Military Mission to the United States, is inspecting the ships. Thirty-six ships have been ordered, with deliveries to be completed this year.

upon many vital German areas—the great ports of Kiel, Hamburg, Bremen, Wilhelmshaven, Emden, Cuxhaven, Bouches; nineteen bases in Nazi territory and oil plants, railroad and industrial centers.

There was bad news, too: British merchant shipping losses during the week ending Oct. 21 were put at forty-five vessels aggregating 193,000 tons—the greatest since the retreat from Dunkerque.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon man; but for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred that will stand adversity.

CARLYLE.

Says President

vett's decision on defense matters, contending that the chief executive had failed to start armament factories operating soon enough, had refused to observe "warnings" from the army that more money was needed, and had told Congress to go home last June when additional appropriations were needed.

The Republican nominee devoted much of his talk to the Charleston naval ordnance plant, which, he said, Mr. Roosevelt visited recently on one of his non-political inspection trips.

The plant stood idle until October, 1939, Willkie said, when a contract was made to put it in working order. He added:

"The third term candidate prates of the state department listening posts in Europe that transmit information to Washington. That's the way he acts on the information. Similar instances are manifold."

"And it was not until last June, not until after France had been conquered and England was standing with her back against the wall—not until then that operations for the production of armor plate were actually begun."

Armament Neglected

"That disarmament of us by bootlegging neglect is not compensated for by the fact that the third term candidate was once Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and had his picture taken beside the useless plant."

Previously, Willkie had quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying that construction of the ordnance plant had started when he was secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration.

Although asserting that the whole country was aroused to "the dangers that confronted us," Willkie said that last June Mr. Roosevelt "told Congress that it might as well go home; there was nothing more for it to do."

People of America, are you going to return such an administration to power again—an administration that keeps our safety on order?"

The Republican nominee said that while Mr. Roosevelt asked for a $160,000,000 increase in national defense appropriations in 1937, he also requested $1,500,000,000 for relief of men "who would have been glad to help build our defense program at a decent wage."

"That is the way the third term candidate placed emphasis on national defense," he added. "That is his record."

When Willkie declared that the president had been "only one-fourth right" in his request for defense funds last January, he added the sentence:

"But I'll tell you that was a rather high percentage for him."

Willkie drove to the city auditorium through streets lined with crowds. He was applauded along most of the route but at one point there was booing. A crowd covered more than a city block outside the auditorium to hear the speech through loudspeakers.

A delegation from the United Mine Workers of America, wearing miner's caps, sat on the stage behind the nominee. When Willkie said he was glad to be in their presence, the men rose and applauded.

All 5,000 seats in the auditorium were filled, and many persons stood.

Car Splattered with Egg

In Huntington an egg splattered the hood of the nominee's car. Patrolman D. K. Altizer said he had preferred a disorderly conduct charge against George Tipton, 18, a newspaper mailing room employee, for attempting to assault Wendell L. Willkie with an egg.

Referring to President Roosevelt's visit to the $22,000,000 ordnance plant in September, Willkie declared:

"He pointed, with pride, to the fact that construction was started on that plant when he was assistant secretary of the navy, more than twenty years ago. That was his contribution to the present production program."

"There are a number of things concerning this plant that the third term candidate did not mention—things which the New Deal would like to forget, but which I am not going to let it forget. These things have a direct bearing upon the safety of the American people. They are entitled to know the facts."

"It is the duty of the chief executive to enlighten us concerning our defense problems. But at the time of his inspection trip here, the New Deal was still engaging in the fiction that there was no election."

"I am mentioning this armor plant, because it is typical of what is happening, has happened, and is bound to happen to our defense wherever the New Deal lays its deadly hand upon it."

Willkie charged that the two-ocean navy "which we need—need now—is seriously delayed because this plant will not be able to produce armor plate until 1942."

Because of the unreasonably warm weather, the tightly-packed audience perspired freely. Perspiration beaded on Willkie's forehead.

Armor Capacity Low

During his discussion of military production, Willkie said the secretary of the navy had written October 2 that armor capacity was not sufficient to meet the navy building program.

"And the third-term candidate can call that one to his barn door, if he wants to," Willkie added as the crowd applauded.

He told a Republican rally on a farm near Jackson, O., that he believed most Americans would label Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Madison Square Garden last night as "a alarming manifestation of what desperation does to a man who seeks to perpetuate himself in power."

"I was shocked," Willkie said, "that the third term candidate, who will still be the executive for another month or so, would make in a time like this the purely demagogic address he made last night."

Willkie spoke from a decorated pine platform facing an open field

ITALIAN-GREEK CLASH OPENS UP NEW WAR THEATRE

Italian-Greek clash opens up new war theatre off the Greek island of Corfu (1) a sea battle between British and Italian vessels was reported as Greece, interpreting an Italian ultimatum as a declaration of war, rushed troops to defend her border with Albania (2). in which a cheering audience stood. He declared Mr. Roosevelt "expressed sorrow last night toward the Italian and Grecian people who had been brought to war," and asserted that the chief executive spoke "very sweetly" of the Italian people.

He also showed consciousness that the election was near, Willkie said. Apparently it was too near for him to repeat his statement at Charlottesville that a neighbor had been stabbed in the back.

The Republican candidate reiterated his statement that Mr. Roosevelt had urged Congress to adjourn last June but that Republicans insisted the legislators remain. If Congress had not stayed, Willkie contended, "there would not today be even any ghost tanks on order."

Willkie repeated his charge that the president had violated Democratic platform pledges of 1932.

"If the candidate does not remember the pledge of 1940 against participating in foreign wars any better than he does the one of 1932," he said, "then the boys had better get ready to get on the transports to go to some foreign shore."

Chills Hague Corrupt

Willkie read a newspaper story saying that when the president left New Jersey yesterday, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City called "Good-bye, Frank. Lots of luck."

Declaring that "we now have the firm of Frank and Frank—Frank Hague and Frank Roosevelt," the candidate continued.

"Here is the most corrupt political boss in America," x x x Here is a man, the third term candidate, x x x who claims he is the candidate of the reform and the moral element of the country."

Moving eastward from Jackson, Willkie stopped at Ironton, O., for an afternoon radio talk in which he said that the only way to release new industries is the election of an administration "that will have our confidence."

He spoke on a women's program sponsored by Willkie-for-president groups.

In tomorrow's campaigning, Willkie will talk at Clarksburg, W. Va., Cumberland, Md., Martinsburg, W. Va., and Baltimore, where he will address a political rally at 8:30 p. m.

In Huntington, W. Va., Willkie spoke to a cheering crowd in government Square, saying he did not expect "that in this Democratic stronghold I would receive such an overwhelming welcome."

"But," he said, "it is in the Democratic strongholds that I should receive a great welcome, because in this campaign of 1940 I stand before the people as the only candidate supporting the principles upon which the Democratic party was founded."

Police Lieutenant W. B. Harris estimated that the crowd in the square and persons lining the candidate's parade route totaled 50,000.

Will Make No Pledges

The nominee reiterated his earlier statement that he had made "no promises or pledges, except my pledges to the American people."

He said that whenever, in any country, "one man has thought he was indispensable, he has always led people down the road to war."

"Whenever any man begins to think that power in his hands is the base thing for the people then he begins to get fuzzy and complex notions."

Willkie tonight issued the following itinerary for Thursday:

Wilmington, Del., 9:30-10:55 a. m. (E. T.)

Trenton, N. J., 12:15 to 1:05 p. m.

Elizabeth, N. J., 2:05 to 2:45 p. m.

New Brunswick, N. J., 3:15 to 3:55 p. m.

Plainsboro, N. J., 4:15 to 5 p. m.

Camden, N. J., arrive 6:10 p. m.; speak at 8:30 p. m.

Closing his Huntington speech, Willkie said that Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 had quoted Woodrow Wilson as saying there was no indispensable man. That, Willkie said, was before "the third term candidate began to get these complexes he has developed in the last few years."

Joseph P. Kennedy

could "assure you now with absolute sincerity and honesty that there has been no such commitment."

"We are re-arming," he said, "because it is the only way in which America can stay out of war. If we re-arm fast enough, America will stay out of war. It is today our guarantee of peace."

It is not an answer to our problem that strong men, able men, may be summoned to cabinet posts. Ultimately decisions on burning questions of policy will have to be made by the chief executive.

A new hand cannot give these problems that careful, thorough and intelligent attention which they must immediately have if our nation is to be secure.

In the light of these considerations, I believe that Franklin D. Roosevelt should be re-elected president of the United States."

Dwelling specifically on the war issue, Kennedy said American people favored avoiding war and pointed out that there was conflict on that score among the candidates for the presidency. "The Republicans," he said, "have expressly approved of this policy."

"If we declare war, our own best interests would be harmed. England's valiant fight is giving us time to prepare. Without assistance from us the British will find it much more difficult to carry on."

"He said nothing could be more harmful from the viewpoint of Great Britain than the declaration of war by the United States."

Kennedy said he had heard from "a great many people" that the defense program was "bogging down," and added that it was unfortunate that this charge had been injected into a political campaign when national teamwork is necessary.

"If we now lack the crusading effort for re-arming," he went on, "and I hope we do not, it is certainly not to be laid at the door of the White House. The president has provided a program and the nation's best specialists, and a Democratic congress has provided ample means."

"If blame there be, we all must share in the inherent weakness of our democratic system where force and propaganda have no place even in the vital job of re-arming."

and let me emphasize it—only production will cure the unemployment that makes our nation insecure."

Willkie said he believes in unemployment insurance and other benefits.

"Never fear that any American will go without government relief until or unless he has a job," he said.

"We have no so-called youth problem, we have only the problem of putting our youth to work," he continued.

Declaring that America had "unlimited natural resources," he demanded:

"How can they tell us there are no more opportunities?"

"We have the inventions and the capital waiting only to be released, but the only thing that will release them is an administration that will have our confidence."

"We likewise need national defense in this critical period and we will have the greatest defense that industry can produce," he said.

Belgium Is Now Rebuilding under Forced Draft

Reconstruction of Public Buildings, Bridges and Harbors Begun

BRUSSELS.—Correspondence of the Associated Press—Belgium is rebuilding under forced draft.

Since September 15, repairing or rebuilding of all private property damaged by military or defensive operations throughout the country has been under way. Credits for rebuilding or eventual extensions were opened to the interested proprietors. Proprietors will have to pay two per cent interest.

Two state guaranteed institutions are dividing between themselves the bulk of the reconstruction, one providing credits for buildings of not more than 10,000 francs revenue ($350), the other for more important private or industrial property.

The immediate effect of this measure provided employment to many thousands of workers of the building industry who were idle and on the dole. The second result was the restarting of many small industries and trades which were paralyzed for lack of credit for the rebuilding of their plants or premises.

Meantime, the reconstruction of public buildings, bridges, harbor and canal works and churches is proceeding under the impulse of the special commissaries appointed.

The scope of the work, which the state is financing as well, is estimated by competent quarters to run to a figure totalling from 12 to 15 billion francs, approximately half a billion dollars.

The damage for the province of West-Flanders alone is estimated by Commissary J. De Heyere at two billion francs, or $60,000,000.

Among others, 750 bridges have to be rebuilt, and the repair of the Antwerp tunnel under the Scheldt is to cost one million dollars.

The cities that have most suffered are: Tournai, Louvain, Nivelles, Alost, Wavre, Ostend, Dinant, Bolland, Antwerp, Liege, Courtrai.

In the province of West-Flanders, 2,500 houses are completely ruined, forty-three churches are totally or partially burned, among them many of great artistic value.

In all, it seems that 100,000 public and private buildings (first official estimate) were totally or partly destroyed in Belgium in the course of the eighteen days of war, and since then British bombers have been busy over Belgian territory, doing much damage to private property.

Three Men Killed In Auto Accident

RAVENNA, O., Oct. 29. (P)—Three men riding in an automobile were killed today as it struck a soft highway shoulder, hurled a wire fence, turned over several times and landed in a field.

The dead were: Kenneth Bradford, 27, William Kline, 60, and John Davis, 40, all of Ravenna.

The accident occurred at Charleston five miles east of Ravenna on Route 5.

fice made the privilege of a new caste; religion paragonized; punishment for an act not a crime when done; arrest without warrant and imprisonment without trial; search and seizure at any time and for no stated reason; no independent jury system; and finally the Gestapo and political murder, tendency to render all things to Caesar—education, hospitals, the care of the sick, the destruction of local self government, the bribery of states, the sneers at the constitution and the courts, the most disinterested interpreters of its meaning, and the most independent guardians of your inalienable rights; the gradual erosion of the sense of personal responsibility for the care of one's aged parent, one's child, one's community and its charities and philanthropies—strange it is, that all this has been so successfully sold to so many people as a progressive and liberal movement. It is a false label for spurious goods.

"Strange it is that after seeing enormous tolls collected from the lesser businesses of liquor, race tracks, dance halls, red light districts, prize fighting, wrestling, slot machines, road building, municipal supplies, even school books for our children, that we should hanker and yearn to turn over all business, all trade, all treasure, transportation, banking, mining, commerce and industry to the modern Caesars."

ently to make certain that Russia does not interfere with Nazi plans in that area, a British military expert said today.

The Germans felt, he added, that the Soviet itself was making ready for any eventuality in the Balkans.

There were those possibilities in the situation, he said:

1. Germany might use political and military pressure and "disruptive propaganda" to protect her large economic interests in the Middle East, without taking military action.
2. Germany might try to move Southeast through Thrace to the Dardanelles. (But he remarked, the country is difficult and at this time of the year weather conditions are against a major campaign.)
3. Germany might go through the Ukraine into Southern Russia to acquire oil.

Senator Wagner Asks Labor To Support F.D.R.

Says John L. Lewis Made "A Grave and Tragic Mistake"

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (P)—Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D-N.Y.) replied to a radio address by John L. Lewis supporting Wendell Willkie, called on labor tonight to "keep America out of war" by re-electing President Roosevelt.

Urging American workers to discard the CIO leader's advice to vote for the Republican presidential nominee, Wagner declared that sometimes leaders "are led into error by uncurbed ambition, or by long brooding over some personal pique."

Wagner, author of the National Labor Relations act, spoke over a nation-wide network (CBS) under the sponsorship of the Democratic National Committee.

Asserting that Lewis had made a "grave and tragic mistake" in supporting Willkie, he added: "I warn you solemnly, out of the fullness of my experience, out of my proven devotion to your cause, that Wendell Willkie plus the Republican leadership of today constitute a most reactionary and anti-social threat to your rights and your well-being."

Wagner said that sometimes leaders "are beguiled into supporting their worst enemies," and that Lewis' "mistake" was "as great as when he urged the election of Herbert Hoover in 1928—a mistake fraught with stark danger to the welfare and happiness—yes, even to the very lives of billions who had looked to him for counsel."

On the issue of peace, Wagner charged Willkie with making "fumbling and conflicting" statements on foreign affairs, and appealed to mothers and fathers not to "take the awful risk of trusting such a novice in such a fateful hour."

"Keep America out of war," he said, "by uniting behind Franklin Roosevelt—who is strong enough to keep aggression away from our shores, experienced enough to keep us out of foreign embroilment and humane enough to care more for peace than for anything else in the world."

Declaring he did not think Lewis' speech of last Friday night in support of Willkie would "interfere with the overwhelming re-election" of Mr. Roosevelt, the speaker said "there may be caesars in industry, but there are no dictators in the labor movement."

"Mr. Willkie is a man whose economic philosophy sounds like Mr. Hoover, whose talk about social security sounds like Mr. Landon, whose labor record looks like that of Mr. Girdler and Mr. Weir, whose business career was perched on top of a spectacular stock pyramid, and whose public career began when he led the fight of the power monopoly against the development of electric power for the people."

exercised through the seniority of several senators.

Henry P. Ashurst, Senate Judiciary chairman whose 28 years of service began with the admission of his state to the union in 1912 was shelved in the primary by Arizona Democrats who nominated Ernest W. McFarland, 45-year-old cattle country judge.

McFarland's Republican opponent is Irving A. Jennings, Phoenix attorney and national legislative chairman of the American Legion.

Utah Democrats sidetracked Senator William H. King, who has served 24 years, and gave the senatorial nomination to Rep. Abe Murdock, whose Republican opponent is Philo T. Farnsworth, Salt Lake City attorney.

King's downfall was attributed partly to his opposition to some Roosevelt administration policies. Murdock has been a New Deal adherent.

In Nevada, Key Pittman, Senate foreign relations chairman with 25 years of service, has been assailed by his Republican rival, Samuel Platt, a Reno lawyer, for an alleged belligerent attitude toward Japan.

Wheeler Opposed by Chadler

Montana's Burton K. Wheeler, whose continuous Senate service dating back to 1922 was not interrupted by his unsuccessful bid for the vice presidency on the 1924 La Follette Progressive ticket, is matched against E. K. Chadler, Republican of Shelby.

In Idaho, Senator Thomas, who took office by appointment after the death of William E. Borah, won the Republican nomination for the two remaining years of Borah's term. The Democratic choice is Glen H. Taylor, an actor who stumped the state in cowboy garb.

New Mexico Republicans pinned their senatorial hopes on Albert K. Mitchell, bitter critic of the administration's reciprocal trade policies. Mitchell opposes Senator Dennis Chavez.

In Wyoming, Democratic Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, who tried unsuccessfully to make the reciprocal agreement subject to Senate ratification, is pitted against Milward L. Simpson, Cody attorney.

Colorado, whose senators both hold over, has concentrated attention on the re-election battle of Ralph L. Carr, its first Republican governor in 14 years. He is opposed by George E. Saunders, Democratic secretary of state.

Others Governors seeking reelection are Idaho's C. A. Bottel, Republican, opposed by Chase A. Clark, Idaho Falls Democratic Mayor; Montana's Roy A. Ayers, Democrat, whose rival is Sam C. Ford; and New Mexico's John E. Milles, Democrat, matched against Maurice Miera.

In Utah, Henry B. Maw, Democrat, and Don B. Colton, former Republican congressman, contest for the governorship relinquished by Henry Bobb, Democrat.

British Forces Get the Jump On Mussolini

ATHENS, Oct. 29. — British planes speeding aid to Greece were reported today to have gotten the jump on Italy by landing on the ancient Corfu Island, the old sentry deemed important in control both the Balkans and the Adriatic sea.

Accounts of the British landing were circulated here as killed Greek mountaineers were reported holding the Italians back along the Albanian border and, under their battle cry "we will throw them into the sea," talking optimistically about putting the Fascist invasion in reverse.

Official quarters confined themselves to the terse announcement: "Operations are developing satisfactorily." General headquarters said communiques would be issued only once a day, late in the evening.

It was understood the British planned to establish air bases on Corfu for the dual purpose of holding guard Greek cities against attack and to place them within easy military striking distance of Italian military objectives.

Corfu, which has proved its military importance down through history, lies in the Ionian sea near the entrance to the Adriatic. Its nearest point is only 16 miles from the Southern tip of Albania and seventy miles to the west of the "heel" of the Italian boot.

Forty miles long and twenty miles wide at its broadest point, the mountainous island offers excellent hiding places for air bases, its deep waters afford natural bases for warships and submarines.

Informed quarters in London were "unable to confirm or deny" additional reports from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, that British forces also had landed at the Greek port of Salonika, so-called key to the Southern Balkans.

A surge of confidence greeted indications that promised British aid was at hand, and the Greek army poured reinforcements into the Metaxas line facing Albania. Among them were special units of the "Evson" units known as "Evson" who distinguished themselves in Balkan wars and the Asia Minor campaign.

Arizona Democratic primary, by conqueror, Sidney P. Osborn, Phoenix publisher, is opposed by J. W. Lee, Republican.

The Wyoming and Nevada governors hold over until 1942.

Physician Recommends Iowa Diet As Way To Prevent Tooth Decay

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is the "Iowa diet" for the prevention and treatment of tooth decay?

Boyd recently has reviewed the results of studies by himself and the late Dr. Charles Drain, relative to the prevention and arrest of caries of the dentin, in the presence of diets adequate in the "protective" foods. On observations of over 250 children, over a period of years, these investigators have observed that caries, which has already passed beyond the tooth enamel and has invaded the dentin, can be arrested in as short a period as ten weeks, and the caries judged as definitely inactive, when adequately protective diets are fed. The daily food components of this so-called "Iowa Diet" are as follows:

One quart of milk per day
One egg
One ounce of butter
One teaspoonful of cod liver oil the year round
Two vegetables, one being raw Fresh fruits.

Intestinal Flu

Is intestinal flu, when it occurs, always associated with influenza of the chest?

"Intestinal flu" is a kind of slang term used by doctors to designate an epidemic of mild dysentery occurring in the winter which has been prevalent in the United States for the past few winters. Nobody really knows its nature, and it might as well be called intestinal flu as anything. Bacteriologists do not recognize it because bacteriologists do not know the germ that causes influenza. Intestinal complications are very unusual in epidemics of actual influenza. The only danger in the use of the term is that it will be applied carelessly to cases which are actually appendicitis or other forms of organic disease.

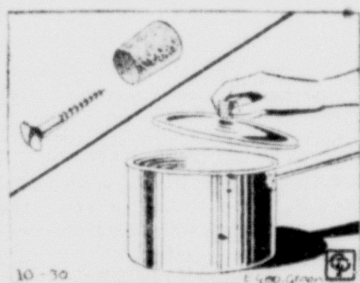

What are the causes and treatment of brittle fingernails?
This is one of the frequent questions sent to me which is easier asked than answered. The doctors have a name for it, however—onychorrhexis—little as they know about it. It is due to a malformation of the nail plate. Any chronic disease is likely to cause brittleness. Also any disturbance of nutrition.

Repeated slight injuries may also be the cause—the nails crack or break, thus keeping up a partial exposure of the nailbed. To prevent or treat, it may be necessary to keep the nails protected with some such covering as heavy adhesive plaster, continuously day and night—and for a long time. Improvement in general health is always followed by improvement in the "tone" of fingernails. Nutritious diets containing Vitamins A and D and milk to supply calcium are indicated; if the cause is a local infection with fungus growths, local antiseptic applications or x-ray.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. C. Holdenville, Ok.—Please tell through your column if there is anything that can be done for leakage of the heart in a child of seven.
Answer: The verdict "leakage of the heart" frightens people, but it actually is not so serious. Nothing can be done to alter the damage to the heart, but the condition is compatible with long life and comfortable health. The principal treatment is not to frighten the patient into limiting the activities of normal life; exercise is good for people with valvular heart disease.

ROSENBAUM'S

THE DAILY STORY

TOO MANY COOKS

There's a Limit to Everything, Including the Size to Which a Fat Pig Must Grow

By MARTIN ROWAN

The 2d of August was always a red-letter day in the economic life of Ballycladdy. It was the day of the annual pig fair. By dawn the four roads leading to the village were jammed. Fat and heavy pigs rode in horse carts. Pigs not quite so fat and heavy rode in donkey carts. Thin, skinny pigs hooted it. One could tell by the method of transportation the respect the owner had for the animal or his expectation of financial returns.

There was no other man in Ballycladdy who had as keen a conception of the value of pork as did Andy Joe. He could estimate the weight of a pig by a glance of his eye. That glance was so all-embracing that he rarely deviated from the correct weight registered by the most accurate scale by more than three pounds.

It was no wonder then that always three or four days before the fair Andy was as busy as a bee in a bottle going around Ballycladdy putting a value on pigs.

On the evening of Aug. 1 Mickey Nellie, Michael Doogan, Big Mick O'Donnell and the Druid were assembled in Andy Joe's kitchen.

"What do you think of the prospects for the fair, Andy?" asked Big Mick O'Donnell.

"It will be a great day and a big fair, Mick," said Andy Joe. "Of course, some people will be luckier than others. The sensible people will get good prices for their pigs."

"It all depends on whether you're lucky or not, Andy," said Michael Doogan. "If you're lucky you'll get a good price; if the bad luck is on you it is how you'll get the poor price."

"In my humble opinion," said The Druid, "the greater emolument depends entirely on the compactness and avoidrumpness of the swine."

"What does Thady mean by that, Mick?" asked Mickey Nellie, turning to Big Mick O'Donnell.

Big Mick smiled. "What Thady means, Mickey," he answered, "is that if you have a solid, well-fed, heavy pig you'll get a good price for him."

"Truth, that's the kind of pig I have myself," said Mickey Nellie.

"Yes, Mickey," said Andy Joe. "That's the kind of a pig you have all right. It is how you know how to feed a pig for market. You cut down on his milk and potatoes when he is about three months old. You let him wander along the sea-shore after that where it is how he can pick up the shell fish and grind it and get the air from the sea. When he does come home in the evening with a healthy taste in the mouth and the hunger of the salt air in his belly it is how you give him a good supper of Indian meal mixed with dandelions. That is why you always have the best pig in Ballycladdy at the age of six months, Mickey."

"It is how I will not get much money for my pig, Andy," said Michael Doogan, "although it is how he has eaten me out of house and home feeding him my best potatoes and skimmed milk."

"You should take a lesson from Mickey Nellie on the feeding of pigs, Michael," said Big Mick O'Donnell.

"Your pig is worth about two pounds 10, Michael," said Andy Joe.

"I'll get more than that for him, Andy," replied Michael Doogan. "It is how I will give him a big feed of baking soda before he starts for the fair. That will swell him. Because the jobbers buy by eyesight it is how they will think he is fat. It is how I will get three pounds for him."

"If you give him soda, Michael," said Mickey Nellie, "it is how you must keep him out of the sight of Horse-Face Lynch."

"How so, Mickey?"

"It is how the Lynch's have been in the pig trading business for generations, Michael. They know all the tricks. It is how old Horse-Face walks along the fairgrounds without saying a word. He draws his fingernail along a pig's back very sharp. He comes back again in about half an hour. If the pig has taken soda it is how the mark of the fingernail will have turned black."

"It is how I keep him out of Horse-Face's way then, Mickey. It is how I sell him to Crooked-Heel Walsh," said Michael Doogan.

"You should take a lesson from Old Jim Neary's experience in the business of deception, Michael," said The Druid.

"What was that, Thady?" asked Michael.

"Some years ago," said The Druid, "Old Jim Neary owned a pig somewhat like yours. Through lack of judgment he had fed him with potatoes and skimmed milk continually. On the day of the fair Old Jim and his two sons, Owen and Ned, held a consultation regarding the price they might expect for the pig. Each of them had Jeremy and deception in his heart to such an extent that each one of them was ashamed to acknowledge their evil intentions. They compromised by saying the beast should fetch about three guineas."

"At midnight Old Jim proceeded quietly to the barn and fed the brute extensive rations of potatoes and skimmed milk with a liberal quantity of baking soda thrown in. About 4 in the morning Ned re-enacted the scene. Likewise Owen at 6 in the morning."

"On the way to the fair the animal lay down by the roadside and died. He had simply exploded from a surfeit of fattening prescriptions.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate).

Doctor Discusses Ways To Get Baby To Eat Properly

Suggests Giving Small Portions of Food for Several Days

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

"My boy two years old, who has been feeding himself since one year of age, refuses to eat any cereal regardless of the type," a letter states.

"If I give him orange juice, then egg, then cereal for breakfast, he will refuse cereal. If I give cereal first, he will refuse this and go without breakfast. He will cry and insist on drinking milk first regardless of what meal. If he sees the dessert he wants only the dessert. If given potato, vegetable and meat on the same plate, although separated, he will eat only potatoes and meat. If potatoes and vegetables are given, he will eat only potatoes."

Let Child Feed Himself

It is fine that you have let your child feed himself, I replied, in part. I hope you don't feed him now however much you are tempted to do so. Until this problem is solved it were better to have him eat alone, and with no other adult in sight if possible. Serve his food on a chair or low table. Serve only one food at a time and in a very small portion. Present first either the orange juice or about a quarter of a cup of milk, no more. Thereafter having no liquor before him during his meal.

Present first the cereal at breakfast in very small portion; a vegetable at each other meal; nothing else. Keep all other food out of sight in another room, and your lips sealed. If, after a few minutes he has not begun to eat the one food before him, remove it, keeping your lips sealed, have his meal end there. Allow him no other food, lots of water but no milk, till the next regular feeding time. Be prepared to ignore his cries and pleadings. Get in touch with your doctor if at any time you have doubts.

When he chooses the particular food before him refuse him more of it until he has eaten all the very small portion of the next food presented alone to him, and so on until he runs the whole course or refuses any food offered. Always let him choose between the food offered or nothing.

Don't Give Large Portions

As the plan succeeds you will be tempted to make the portions much too large and to present several foods at a time. He must learn that food is hard to get and that he rarely can have all he wants of anything. Once you get him begging for food you have made real progress. Keep the scales out of sight during the corrective program. Expect the child to lose weight if he holds out a few days. Think of his weight two weeks or two months hence.

In case you don't have the courage to carry out such a program you might better leave home a few days, especially during this child's meal times, and have a nurse or other person who can be wholly calm and unemotional, and, therefore, successful. If no adult showed any emotion over the child's failure to eat what he should there would be practically no eating problems among babies and young children except those requiring the guidance of a pediatrician.

Catholic Editor Takes A Firm Stand against the Third Term

Says Way to Keep Out of War Is To Vote Roosevelt Out of Office

(From The New York Times)
Characterizing President Roosevelt as "inconsistent and unpredictable," the Rev. James M. Gillis, editor of The Catholic World, declares in a leading editorial of the November issue of the magazine, that "we can stay out of war if on November 5 we vote Franklin D. Roosevelt out of office."

In strongly opposing the third term nomination of the president, Father Gillis, a member of the Paulist Fathers, bitterly assails the chief executive's "indispensability" claim, but centers his main attack on the president's foreign policy.

"What interests me and puzzles me is that the President should say and do a hundred things, which he is not called upon by his office to do, judging, condemning, challenging, threatening other nations, all but daring them to war, yet blandly declare before God and man 'I work and pray for peace,'" Father Gillis charges in the editorial.

"A Psychological Riddle"

"It is a psychological riddle. I confess I don't understand the man. But I do think him inconsistent and unpredictable. An inconsistent, unpredictable man is no man to be three times president of the United States. "Obviously I make no pretense to a stoic impassivity in regard to the way things have been going in the Roosevelt administration. The president scents an emergency. So do we all. He predicts a crisis. So do we all."

"But the emergency and the crisis are not the invasion of our land by a foreign power. The emergency consists in this, that we are betwixt war and peace; the crisis is our entrance into war. 'If we go in now, or soon, we shall go in more unprepared than France and England, perhaps as unprepared as Poland and Norway. Self-preservation is the first law of nature. We should stay out at least until we are ready to go in. There is more chance of our staying out with Wendell Willkie, who says we must not fight another nation's war than with Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has decided that another nation's war is our own."

Can Stay Out

"Unless we are willing to 'sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish with beleaguered England, we had better stay out. We can stay out of war if on November 5 we vote Franklin D. Roosevelt out of office."

In addition to criticism of the president's handling of foreign affairs, Father Gillis opposed his candidacy on the grounds that no man was "indispensable" and that a breaking of the third-term tradition would represent a serious blow to American democracy.

"Father Joseph Rickaby digs up a Greek proverb that hits off in three words what's wrong with Franklin D. Roosevelt: 'Arche dei xe andra.' Father Gillis quoted: 'It is difficult to do that proverb into three English words. 'Arche' means offices, power, authority, domination. 'Dei xe' may be translated shows, or shows up, or reveals. Perhaps the best brief version would be: 'Power reveals the man.'"

Cites Canon Law of Church

Father Gillis held that it was for this reason that the Canon Law of the Roman Catholic Church prescribed rotation in office, with major superiors of the church elected, "except in some instances," for only a prescribed term, and local superiors for offices of three years, "with a possibility of a second term but not a third."

"Those who wrote the Canon Law did not ignore the super-natural influences calculated to keep down a superior's self-esteem; prayer, holy mass, examination of conscience, the doctrine and tradition of Christian and monastic humility," he continued. "None the less, they took no chances, they knew the weakness of man and the propensity of those who once obtain power to hold on to it. Hence, the safeguards against any one's considering himself indispensable."

"Speaking a few years ago with one who seemed to be close to President Roosevelt—too close to suit some critics of the administration—I asked him what he really thought of the president. 'I think all the Roosevelts are dangerous,' he said. Whether he meant only Franklin and Eleanor and Jimmy and Elliott or whether he harked back also to Teddy I don't know. Speaking for myself, I should certainly include the Rough Rider. Historians two of three hundred years hence will probably hold that Theodore Roosevelt started us on the wrong course by Franklin D. Roosevelt is now pursuing."

"The imperialistic policy of the two Roosevelts contains more possibilities of disaster than any other of the numerous changes that have taken place in our laws and conditions. As a self-contained one-continent nation, we might go on indefinitely."

Interference Dangerous

"But interfering here, there, everywhere in Europe, Asia, Africa, in Australia and in the islands of the South Pacific we shall hasten the end of the great American experiment."

"It is for this reason, above all others, that I think the electorate should hand Franklin D. Roosevelt (and, of course, with him the whole box and dice of the Roosevelt) their walking papers on election day. We should say to him what Canon Law says to better, wiser, more humble, saintlier men, 'Step down. Give place. You have had enough. More would certainly spoil you and would probably ruin us.'"

Father Gillis contended that some Roosevelt supporters, "with characteristically perverse logic," attempted to justify the third term with the argument that the nation was in a state of emergency. He held that if such were the case, then the country more than ever before should reject the third-term bid since in an emergency the president would have "more power than any other ruler."

Father Gillis pointed out that the president had the power to devalue the dollar at any time "it pleases him to do so," could put the country on a bimetallic standard "overnight," could fix the value of silver dollar at any rate he wanted to, could print $3,000,000,000 in greenbacks if he chose, and prescribe the regulation under which gold may be acquired, held, exported or imported, and operate a gigantic "stabilization fund" of $2,000,000,000, with his decision as to the management of the fund "final and not subject to review by any other officer of the United States."

A Terrible Blunder

"To perpetuate in office a man with a mania for power, who asks obtains and holds all that he gets, and demands ever more and more would be as great a political blunder as that of Hindenburg and the Reichstag that handed over all the liberties of the people to Hitler," Father Gillis contended.

Contending that certain ambitious Presidents "sometimes openly, sometimes behind a screen of affected difference" attempted to gain a third term, only to be turned down by the overwhelming response of the country, Father Gillis called upon the nation to again defeat still another third-term bid.

Father Gillis assailed Miss Dorothy Thompson, writer for The New York Herald Tribune, for her support of the president's third-term nomination, pointing out that in past years Miss Thompson had characterized the chief executive as "audacious," "dangerous" and "reckless."

"There is much righteous indignation about the 'swear' now being applied to Mr. Willkie," he said. "But if I must choose between two political evils, I would prefer the 'swear' dirty as it is, to the violence done to logic and good sense and good taste and elementary truth by those who are determined to put the 'audacious,' 'dangerous,' 'reckless' president in the position where he can do most harm."

"Of all the back somersaults ever executed by a man in public life, those of Franklin D. Roosevelt are the most numerous and the most spectacular. All newspaper readers have seen them from time to time over a period of eight years. But newspaper readers promptly forget them. So let us recall a few samples."

Attack Is Cited

Father Gillis then cited the president's attack in 1932 on the Hoover regime as "the greatest spending administration in peacetime in all our history," his attack in the same campaign on "bureaus and bureaucrats, commissions and commissioners," his appeal in 1932 to "stop borrowing to meet continuing deficits," and his "eleven promises in eight years to balance the budget."

"The president seems to be afflicted with an incapacity-congenital or acquired, or both—of recognizing the consequences of his own actions," Father Gillis contended. "A recent sample is in a Dayton address of Oct. 12. For many long years, the president says, every ounce of energy I have had has been devoted to keeping this nation and the other republics at peace with the rest of the world. That is today the objective for which I hope and work and pray."

"Yet he repeatedly castigates the dictators, calls them names, threatens and challenges them all, presumably as a means of preserving peace."

"Whether the president of the United States is wise to speak thus truculently; whether it is within his province to create and declare the policy of both North and South America; whether he has a mandate from the people to challenge the dictators may be questioned. "Suppose he has. Let him then say honestly that he feels bound in duty and conscience to speak out even though the result be war. To say in one breath that he 'works and prays for peace,' and in the next breath to dare the dictators to knock the chip off his shoulder indicates an amazing intellectual obfuscation."

The women of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Cor. Bedford & Columbia Sts., will hold their annual turkey supper, Wednesday, Oct. 30, beginning at 5 o'clock. Adv.—T-Oct 28-29 N-Oct 29-30

Five Are Charged With Violating City Code Here

Arrests Follow Failure To Connect Properties to City Sewer

Five property owners, including two women, were arrested early last night on a charge of violating the city code by failing to connect their North Mechanic street properties to the city sewer within thirty days notice.

They are Mrs. George Everstine, 604 North Mechanic street; Fred and George Hieyer, 248 North Mechanic street; Joseph H. Reinhardt, 17 Baltimore street; and Mrs. Sol Gross, 247 Henderson avenue.

All were arrested on warrants obtained by Walter E. Kline, sanitary inspector for the City Health Department, after allegedly failing to make a nuisance after giving notice. Each was summoned to appear this morning in police court for a hearing.

Technically the property owners are accused of violating Chapter 8, Section 2D, Paragraph 17, of the City Code.

Mrs. Everstine and Fred and George Hieyer reside on their property. Reinhardt has property at 606 North Mechanic street and Mrs. Gross owns property at 408-10-12 14 North Mechanic street.

What's Mrs.

The rear platform of the Willkie Special.

What will they see? Well, note the way Ruth Sheldon describes Mrs. Willkie in Scribner's Commentator.

"All you have to do," says Miss Sheldon, is look at Mrs. Willkie to see what fun it is to be with her. In contrast to her husband's big nose, she is only five feet two and a half inches tall and is as trim and active as a schoolgirl. Her face, framed with short fluffy, brown hair frosted with silver, is arresting not because of its genuine prettiness but because of its alertness and the constant play of emotion in her blue eyes. She combines the eagerness and shyness of a little girl with the sophisticated and charm of a mature woman. Perhaps the best way to describe her is that she is utterly feminine.

Ideal Marriage

"The Willkies," Miss Sheldon continues, epitomize the American ideal of marriage. After twenty-three years of married life they are inseparable. Work and pleasure are shared alike—just as through the years they have solved their problems and endured their hardships together. The essence of their relationship is expressed by Mrs. Willkie in a single sentence revealing both the man and the woman with glowing eyes she smiles. All you have to do is just look at him to see what fun it is to be with him.

Fundamentally, Miss Sheldon says, Mrs. Willkie is a wife and a mother. Her life revolves around "the men" of the family. She does not play bridge. She belongs to no clubs. She spends no more time on clothes than the average woman, but the results are always simple and becoming.

Likes People

While Mrs. Willkie is primarily a wife and mother, like her husband, she enjoys meeting and knowing people. Both are exceptionally gifted conversationalists, both have smiles that quickly warm up any room, make it a pleasant place to be.

In a word, Mrs. Willkie is a woman who inspires confidence. As one lady down east allegedly stated, "I hope Mrs. Willkie wins. I've never felt quite safe about the country since Mrs. Coolidge left the White House."

will be called upon to decide the future of America," Stewart said.

Answer Is Important

"Upon our answer as recorded by the exercise of the privilege of the ballot, now enjoyed by the citizens of but few nations of the earth, will depend the liberties, the safety and the happiness of this and future generations of Americans."

It is within our power to put an end forever to the attempt of the part of a single individual to seize control of the government of the United States, and to hold it as a personal possession possibly during his entire lifetime.

The efforts of the third term candidate to perpetuate himself in the presidential office seems doomed to failure. But his defeat will not be accomplished unless every American does his duty by voting November 5 to repudiate the idea that in the United States there exists an "indispensable man" in whom shall be vested absolute authority over our fortunes and even our lives, and on whose personal whim shall rest the decision for peace or war.

Wendell Willkie, in the campaign now drawing to a close, has had to triumph over almost impossible odds. The new deal trenches in power, with millions at its command more than a million civil employees on its payroll, padded WPA and relief rolls and corrupt political machines.

Has Crafty Opponent

As his opponent, Mr. Willkie has confronted a crafty politician, who refused to openly debate the issues of the campaign, but who, under the pretense of defense inspections, has been able to make campaign tours paid for by the taxpayers of the nation, and at the same time has enjoyed unlimited use of the radio for so-called non-political speeches, made under any and every conceivable pretext.

Nor have the New Dealers hesitated to resort to the most disgraceful methods to smear Mr. Willkie personally, endeavoring by these means to impugn the Republican nominee's patriotism and to arouse racial prejudices and hate among Americans.

These efforts have boomeranged disastrously for the perpetrators as might have been expected from a nation that loves fair play. The effort has even been openly made to lead the public to believe that Hitler and Mussolini desire Mr. Willkie's election, and that only the indispensable man could save America from the dire consequences of the dictator's hate.

As against these methods, Mr. Willkie has braved rotten eggs and tomatoes to discuss face to face every element of our population. The real issues of the campaign are a remedy for unemployment, national preparedness, national unity, revitalizing the nations industries, the Roosevelt foreign policies that daily lead us closer to war, and last, but by no means least, the third term, that must inevitably lead to transforming the United States into a totalitarian state under a one-man dictatorship. Mr. Willkie has put forth a courageous and masterful report to arouse the American people to the dangers confronting them.

Every Effort Deserved

"Can any patriotic citizen, Republican, Democrat or Independent, do less than to answer him, not only by personally voting the Republican ticket but by putting forth every effort, even at some sacrifice, to get others to do likewise."

"Only in this way can we insure the safety of America. It is each honest citizen's personal responsibility to see that Wendell Willkie shall not have made this campaign in vain."

But Wendell Willkie, as president, must have men in both the Senate and the House of Representatives who are both fearless and understanding, and may I take just a few minutes to tell you of the Republican candidates' qualifications as I see them.

Harry W. Nice, the Republican candidate for the United States Senate is a national figure, honest, fearless, progressive and at all times working in the interests of the working people.

He believes in collective bargaining by representatives of labor's own free choice, without any interference and in full protection of those obvious rights. He believes in the maintenance of minimum standards for wages of maximum standards for hours. He believes that such standards should constantly improve. He believes in federal pensions in adequate old-age benefits and in unemployment allowances. He is conducting a crusading, aggressive, fighting campaign to bring unity to America, to bring the unity of labor and capital, farmer and manufacturer, farmer and worker and all other classes to this great cause of the preservation of freedom.

The Home Campaign

And finally may I say a few words in regard to the congressional campaign being waged in my home district.

"I want everyone to know that I am supporting with all the vigor I can muster, that great American hero, Walter P. Johnson, for election as representative in Congress for this district."

"I want to stress tonight the imperative necessity of electing him on November 5 in order that the Sixth congressional district of Maryland may have a full-time representative in the House."

"It is a painful fact that our district for the past two years has been so unfortunate as to have for congressman, the Honorable William D. Byrnes, 'The Little Man Who Wasn't There.'"

"The official record of the Seventy-sixth congress shows that out of 196 roll calls in the House of Representatives, Mr. Byrnes missed exactly 183 or 46 per cent of the opportunities given him to register a vote in the Congress. The gentleman from the Sixth Maryland district was absent."

"I am listing a few of the many important bills that were voted on during Mr. Byrnes' absence."

Monroe Doctrine, revenue for national defense, for the relief of World War veterans, Hatch clean politics bill, ordering national guard into active military service, facilities for the national defense in the Tennessee valley, for construction of naval vessels so vital and necessary for the defense of our country, the wages and hour law amendments and National Labor Relations act. When the president called for amendment of the neutrality act amendments again Mr. Byrnes was 'The Little Man Who Wasn't There.'"

Is Official Record

"This statement needs so emphasis, because it is the official record. It merely tells the people of this district that throughout the Seventy-sixth Congress they had but little more than fifty per cent representation in the national House of Representatives."

"So I say to the people of the Sixth congressional district, to all the voters of both political parties, that we must elect a full time representative, not a part time man. We want one who will stay on the job, who will work, by faithful service, the salary he takes from the public treasury. Such a man is our great national hero."

So on November 5 go to the polls and make our country safe. Vote and work for Wendell Willkie, Harry W. Nice and Walter Johnson."

the crowd, Commissioner Orr predicted 15,000 as a conservative estimate. Republican leaders, citing the fact that Hoover drew a crowd of between 25,000 and 30,000 in 1928, predicted at least 20,000 or 25,000.

All concerned agreed that the weather today would have much to do with the size of the turnout. The forecast last night for Cumberland was:

ORDINANCE NO. 1741

berland was showers and warm-er. Cumberland will be the first Maryland stop of the Willkie Special, now on the last leg of a whirlwind jaunt throughout the nation.

Last stop before Cumberland will be Grafton, W. Va. When the Diesel-hauled train leaves Cumberland it will proceed to Baltimore with one stop at Martinsburg. Willkie will speak in Baltimore tonight.

To See Mrs. Willkie

Although interest in Willkie himself was paramount in Cumberland last night, interest in seeing the candidate's wife was almost as keen judging by numerous comments. It is expected that the presentation of a bouquet from the Smith triplets will be followed by other floral offerings. Three prominent Cumberland women, Mrs. Taylor Smith, Mrs. Walter C. Capper and Miss Elizabeth Lowndes last night were planning to send a corsage to Mrs. Willkie, it was reported.

An honor guard of ex-service men will be another feature of today's visit. Special caps will be distributed to 150 ex-service men today at 1:30 o'clock at the State Armory. The group will march as a unit from the Armory to the depot.

Committee On Job

The program has been arranged to click with clocklike precision by the committee members. They are Chairman Wilson, Col. Nelson W. Russier, Edgar M. Lewis, Charles Carder, Thomas Elias, Herbert Griffith, Mrs. Grace Shaffer and James Parker.

In connection with today's visit, the Associated Press has made arrangements for the installation of portable wire photo transmission equipment whereby pictures taken during the Republican nominee's stop here will be sent over the telephone lines to the New York office of the wire service. The equipment will be set up in the Queen City Hotel. It was necessary to install a special wire loop from the Cumberland telephone exchange for the operation of the picture-sending machine.

Smith Tells

forces constitutes another big handicap, Smith noted. For example, fifty per cent of the area of Garrett and Allegany counties is heavily wooded, and it would require a force of at least 500 men to patrol these woods properly.

Smith traced the history of fish and game legislation in the state from its beginning in 1892, and detailed the various hatchery plants and game refuges that are operated, as well as the measures that are constantly being taken for restocking both streams and forests.

It is Smith's opinion that soil and forest conservation are so closely related in their objectives that these should be united in administration with fish and game conservation.

The funds at the disposal of the commission are provided by the fees from hunting and fishing licenses. When a fisher or hunter is reminded that for $125 paid for his license he can bag some $600 or so of game and fish within the limits prescribed by regulatory laws, the speaker said, it is seen that he is getting the bigger end of the investment.

The recent plan of organizing county advisory councils of ten members each will prove a big help in the administration of the fish and game laws, Smith declared.

Birthdays Are Observed

The club held another birthday observance in honor of three members, namely, Porter Collins, Frank E. Smith and Charles A. Piper. In their honor a special birthday cake was placed on the table, bearing lighted candles and containing a music box, which played "Happy Birthday to You," this being a contribution of one of the celebrants, Frank E. Smith.

Condition of Oldtown Woman Is Reported 'Fair'

Court Orders Negro To Leave County

The condition of Mrs. Margaret Speker, 59, of Oldtown, who was injured Monday on the Uhl highway when struck by an automobile after alighting from a bus, was reported "fair" last night at Memorial hospital.

Hospital attendants said the woman remained in a semi-conscious condition suffering from a possible fractured skull, lacerations and bruises.

Paul Tross, Keyser Negro, Must Pay Death Penalty, Supreme Court Rules

Denial of an appeal for a new trial for Paul Tross, 41, Keyser, W. Va., negro, who entered a plea of guilty to an indictment charging criminal assault upon Miss Mary Lynn Stebbins, Sunday, June 2, was announced yesterday by the United States Supreme court.

Tross's appeal was denied some time ago by the West Virginia State Supreme court.

Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney of Mineral county, announced last evening that he had received official notice from the clerk of the United States Supreme court.

An indictment was returned against Tross by a special grand jury June 6, charging the negro with criminally assaulting Miss Stebbins, Piedmont school teacher, in her Main street apartment, Keyser, on the morning of June 2.

At a special session of circuit court June 10 Tross entered a plea of guilty. The following day he was sentenced to hang by Judge Robert McV. Drane. In the execution order the judge set the date at sixty days from June 11.

The sentence marks the first death penalty on record to be imposed in Mineral county.

"I'm guilty all right," So said Blair Johnson, 36, colored, of Winnow street, yesterday in trial magistrates court shortly before he was given a suspended jail term and ordered to leave Allegany county and never return.

Johnson, sought by authorities for eleven months, was charged with stealing $12 from the home of Elmer Johnson, of Frederick street. Magistrate Frank A. Perdew sentenced Johnson to serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction, but paroled him for one year. He ordered the negro to repay the stolen money and leave Allegany county.

Authorities said Johnson has served several terms for various offenses in the last fifteen years.

him represent me for the next two years.

Praise by Rice

I went to Grantland Rice, who knows more men in baseball than perhaps any other observer. He told me that the character of Walter Johnson stood out head and shoulders above everyone else, that he had the highest ideals of fair play, that he never took an unfair advantage of any player on his own team or of a player who opposed him, nor of the rules of the game. Grantland Rice said that I could tell you that I would be glad to have a man like Mr. Johnson represent him in any capacity.

Ty Cobb, who opposed Johnson in many a contest, visited Montgomery county not long ago. I asked him about Walter Johnson. He said that Johnson had perhaps a greater temptation than any other player to bean a batter, that he could throw a fast ball at a batter's head and scare the daylight out of him, but he said that Walter Johnson would never stoop to such a practice.

And from other sources I learned that Walter Johnson always had self-control in the midst of great confusion. He had poise, kept his head and never wavered from a set of principles he had adopted as a rule of his life. The cry of the mob in the bleachers never influenced him.

So much for Johnson's reference. Then I went to Johnson himself. I wanted to find out from him at first hand how he felt about things. He spoke simply and sincerely. Parenthetically, one of the things I like about Johnson is that he has never written any of these new-fangled books on economics.

He doesn't understand how some political magic can be made a substitute for hard work. He is old-fashioned enough to believe that we can't have more things for more people unless we produce those things. He believes that the government can give to its citizens nothing except what it first takes away from them. He thinks that we have been living off our fat and that borrowed money must be repaid some time if we are honest with ourselves.

I found I agreed with this philosophy 100 per cent. Then Mr. Johnson told me that he believed Congress had voted away too much of its power to the President. He felt that Congress, after all, represented you and me directly and should not give up that responsibility in favor of "must" legislation of blank checks to the Executive, of being rubber-stamps. I found I agreed with him on that.

Says County Is Divided

Furthermore he believes that the country is dangerously divided after eight years of preaching class war; that if we are to get ahead, we must have teamwork, and Walter Johnson knows something about how important teamwork is to win any contest. He thinks that under Wilkie we can have a country united again, very much as it was united eight years ago under President Roosevelt, but which, he thinks, is impossible under Mr. Roosevelt because there has been created so much class hatred.

As to war, Walter Johnson feels that war is not inevitable, that it is not necessary. He feels that we can make war inevitable if we continue manufacturing hysteria. Again he is old-fashioned enough to believe that before one gets into a fight, he had better keep his mouth shut and go into training. The time to talk big is when flabby muscles have become strong, eyes clear and head calm.

I found myself in agreement here, and so I told Walter Johnson—as I am expressing myself to my neighbors and friends on the air tonight—that I stand ready to let Walter Johnson represent me in Congress during the critical days that lie before us.

Seibert Boy Is Member Of National Championship Cattle Judging Team

Thomas Reid, of Seibert, five miles east of Cumberland, is a member of the University of Maryland judging team, coached by Dr. K. L. Thurk, and named as America's best student judges of purebred Jersey cattle.

Reid, Marion Chance of Eastern, 3 K. S. Sargent, of Baltimore, and Frank Hoffman, of Edmonston, earned their title and a bronze statue of a Jersey cow, offered by the American Jersey Cattle Club, in the National Collegiate Dairy Judging contest, in competition with twenty-five other college teams, at the recent National Dairy Show in Harrisburg, Pa.

In addition to the national championship team trophy, each member of the Maryland team received a beautiful plaque with a full-color reproduction of a painting of a Jersey cow.

The presentations were made at the annual college judging teams' banquet of the National Dairy Science association, sponsors of the national contest.

Civil War Bride Bit Is Found by City Workers

A bride bit, believed to have been a relic of the Civil War, was found yesterday by city workers who were repairing the mill race sewer near Bedford street.

Inscribed on the brass-plated bit, which weighed one pound, were the initials "U. S." the name of the manufacturer, "Howard and Company" and the letters "D. R." which were encircled.

Several old timers who viewed the relic at the city engineer's office at city hall agreed that it was a product of Civil War days and probably was the property of a Federal army officer.

The bit was in very good condition except for being corroded in a few spots.

Scalded Celanese Worker Is Reported Improved

A 36-year-old Celanese pipe fitter was reported "improving" last night at his North Cumberland home where he was taken Monday after being scalded while at work.

Albert M. Kalbaugh, 223 Pearl street, was burned about the left side of his face, chest, back and left arm by hot water.

According to his wife, he had turned off the water while working on pipes in the spinning department. Some one turned the hot water back on, she said.

Kalbaugh was given first-aid treatment at the plant. Then he was taken home.

Coast 'Fix' Probe Seeks Higher-Ups

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29 (AP)—District attorney's investigators today were subpoenaing a dozen witnesses to testify before the county grand jury regarding purported horse-race "fixing" at Hollywood Park track.

Jerry Giesler, chairman of the California Horse Racing Board, said the District Attorneys of San Mateo and San Diego counties had promised similar action regarding the Tanforan, Bay Meadows and Del Mar tracks.

Giesler said statements given the board by jockeys indicated that at least 15 jockeys had been paid to "throw" more than 100 races at the four tracks in 1938, 1939 and 1940.

Devises used, he said, included not only pulling horses, but whipping them on the wrong or near side, fake pileups, carrying a horse wide on the far turn, deliberate jamming in close quarters and whipping of animals that "stopped" under the lash.

Sharp-eyed stewards at the various tracks had detected obviously crooked riding and set down the jockeys.

"What I am chiefly interested in," said Giesler, "is getting the higher-ups (among the men alleged to have given jockeys money) and seeing to it that they never again have an opportunity to fleece bettors and besmirch the good name of horse racing in this State."

District Attorney Burton Pitts said if the Grand Jury decides to act, he will ask indictments charging conspiracy to commit theft, actual theft and contributions to the delinquency of minors. Many of the jockeys are minors.

Twelve Men Are Expected To Answer First Call In Allegany County

Draft officials here last evening indicated approximately twelve Allegheny county men will answer the first call to the training camps, scheduled for November, according to the set-up as announced yesterday in Washington.

In the capital it was announced that the first twenty-five numbers drawn would cover the first call.

Only twelve men in Allegheny county were among the first twenty-five numbers drawn in the lottery. The numbers are 158, 192, and 105.

Deferments, however, would result in more than twenty-five numbers being checked before Allegheny county's quota could be filled.

With the first number drawn yesterday some 6,175 young men became the first to be called up for a year's military training unless they are deferred because they have dependents or are essential to industry or for some other reason. They were the men whose draft boards had assigned them serial number 158.

Local Woman Is Treated For Lacerated Left Arm

Mrs. R. L. Snyder, 39, of 508 Linden street, was treated yesterday morning at Allegheny hospital for a lacerated left arm, suffered when it went through the window of a kitchen door.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Snyder's arm rammed through the window when she slipped while attempting to shut the door. Ten sutures were used to close the wound.

Hagerstown Woman Dies While Listening To Draft Broadcast

HAGERSTOWN, Oct. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Anna Mary Brandenburg died suddenly of a heart attack at her home here this evening while listening by radio to the names of men from Hagerstown and Washington county being selected for possible military training.

The 1939 legislature abolished the office of commission of loans, an independent department, and authorized the appointment of an administrator of loan laws under the state bank commissioner.

Downing said his department could supervise small loan companies "for at least one-half the amount now expended for supervision by another department."

He assured council members there "is no friction existing between" his office and Miss Risteau's.

Miss Risteau said her office "has no function in common with the banking division."

She said her department is financially self-sustaining and that funds of the two departments should not be co-mingled.

Woman Screams

that question was settled with the first 650 numbers recorded.

Colorful Ceremonies

The opening ceremonies had been colorful and at one point sharply dramatic. But, as a spectacle, the lottery turned into a flop soon after it had settled into its well planned routine.

Spectators who had crowded the hall began leaving. Early in the evening the demand lessened so much that the requirement of cards of admission was dropped altogether.

But, at the opening, the interest was far more intense.

President Roosevelt stood looking on. Secretary Stimson, blindfolded, gingerly reached his left hand into the famous old gold fish bowl and withdrew it, grasping a tiny blue cylinder. An army officer opened it, took from it a number slip. He handed it to the president.

"The first number drawn by the secretary of war," Mr. Roosevelt slowly announced, is "serial number 158."

There was a sharp, quickly repressed little scream from a woman at the rear of the hall. Her son's number had been the first drawn in the great peace time draft lottery of 1940.

Other officials, cabinet officers, members of congress, and a long procession of veterans, each drew a capsule from the bowl. Then, expert little crews from selective service headquarters, especially rehearsed for the momentous job, took over, and the drawing settled down to a precisely and mechanically executed operation destined to run far into the night.

President Speaks

The shiny new departmental auditorium, with fluted limestone columns and blue and gold decorations, began to show broad expanses of empty seats although it had been jammed for the opening ceremonies. Young men of draft age came and went, because a registration certificate was the same as a ticket of admission.

Veterans Ask for $25,000 Increase In Relief Funds

Measure Submitted to Maryland Legislative Group

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 29 (AP)—A bill calling for an appropriation of $25,000 more per fiscal year for the Veterans' Relief Fund was submitted to the legislative council for approval today by the Maryland Veterans' Commission.

Earlier the council took under consideration the question of what state department should be given supervision over small loan companies.

Joseph Cantrel, Veterans' Commission chairman, submitted a measure under which the state appropriation for the veterans' relief fund would be increased from $90,000 to $115,000.

Cantrel said under the bill $16,000 would be used for administrative purposes and the remaining $99,000 would go into payments to poor and disabled veterans and their widows and children.

Under the existing law, $15,000 is used for administrative purposes. The remaining $75,000 is not enough to care for all of the veterans cases, Cantrel declared.

During the fiscal year just ended, the entire $75,000 was spent on 8,166 cases, the commission chairman reported. He said 2,217 cases had to be disapproved by the commission because of the lack of funds. Two-thirds of the cases rejected were meritorious ones, he added.

During the morning session, state Bank Commissioner John W. Downing urged that his department be given sole supervision over small loan companies.

Miss Mary Risteau, administrator of loan laws who appeared after Downing recommended that her office be set up as a separate department for supervising the loan companies.

The 1939 legislature abolished the office of commission of loans, an independent department, and authorized the appointment of an administrator of loan laws under the state bank commissioner.

Downing said his department could supervise small loan companies "for at least one-half the amount now expended for supervision by another department."

Correction Is Made On Roosevelt's Address

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP)—The White House issued a correction late today on a portion of President Roosevelt's address at the draft lottery.

The president had said that "the total drawing will be ten per cent of all those registered," whereas actually the numbers of all draft registrants were to be drawn during the long day-and-night lottery.

The official correction substituted the following for the paragraph in which the president made the statement about ten per cent:

"While all members are called, only the first ten per cent will be considered as the first drawn. 1,640,000 out of the total of 16,400,000. If your number is drawn after the first ten per cent of the numbers, you will not be called into this year's service."

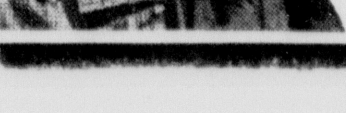

"If your number is among the first ten per cent, you may be called but only 800,000 out of the 1,640,000 will be. Thus more than ninety-five per cent of the grand total are not to be called, and less than five per cent are to be."

Boy Suffers Burns From Upsel Coffee Pot

David Robinette, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Robinette, of Bowling Green, suffered second degree burns about the legs yesterday morning at home when he upset a pot of hot coffee.

He was treated at Allegheny hospital and discharged.

The following list shows the first twenty-five numbers in the order drawn yesterday at Washington, and the names and addresses of the Allegany County registrants corresponding to the numbers in each of the four county boards. The names published today are more than will be required in the first call, due about November 18.

Bowl Grid Games Assured Change of Casts

Four of Teams in 1940 Classics Are Already Out of It

Orange Bowl at Miami To Have Two New Opponents

Tulane and Southern California Not in Running

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The football season has just reached the long pants stage, but already the fans are assured a revised cast of characters for the major bowl shows next New Year's day. Four of this year's bowl teams are saddled with enough defeats or ties to make them extra-premium risks and the other four face games which may leave them in the same class.

The Orange Bowl at Miami is assured a complete change of cast. Georgia Tech and Missouri, the 1940 headliners, has been set back twice this year, and one defeat leaves a team second-rate goods as far as bowl committees are concerned.

Tulane, which shared the spotlight in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, started this season by losing three straight. Southern California, the West Coast's Rose Bowl representative last New Year's day, has been defeated only once, but it was twice. So the Trojans may be sitting up there in Section H when the 1941 contest is played.

The four other 1940 bowl teams—Tennessee, Clemson, Boston College and Texas A&M—are still going strong, but only Tennessee with its walk-around-and-rest-while schedule seems to be on easy street.

Face Tough Foes

Texas Aggies face four tough cookies in a row in Arkansas, SMU, Rice and Texas. Clemson has Tulane, Auburn and Furman in front of it, and Boston College has undefeated Georgetown and Auburn.

With hitherto undefeated teams dropping off like leaves every Saturday, the list of bowl prospects is dwindling rapidly, and since several teams which might be considered are prevented from competing in post-season games by conference rules, or personal independence, the bowl committees already can count the possibilities on their fingers.

At least four teams currently rated among the Associated Press first 10 can be discarded as prospects right now unless past barriers abruptly are lowered. They include three big 10 teams—Minnesota, Michigan and Northwestern—and Cornell, Navy, another unbeaten team but not so highly rated, also can be counted out.

Among unbeaten teams open to a sales talk are Georgetown, Notre Dame, Detroit, Stanford and Penn State, in addition to the four which played last New Year's day and still are prospects.

Team leaders were P. White, Renegades, 176-406; Twigs, Racketeers, 421; Lewis, Outlaws, 376; and Siles, Bandits, 411. No records were broken. The scores:

Notre Dame Captain May Miss Army Game

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Bad news came to the Notre Dame football forces today—Capt. Milt Piepul, hard hitting fullback, may be unable to play against the Army at New York Saturday.

Piepul suffered torn muscles in his side during the Illinois game Saturday and although Dr. J. E. McMeel said he hoped to have the big back in shape to make the trip to New York, he would not know before tomorrow whether Piepul would be able to play.

THEY CAN CHANGE

"Few people realize," remarks Jimmy Crowley of Fordham, "how much a football team can change in a few weeks. A late September and an early November team can be touchdowns different—many touchdowns."

For example, Harmon and Michigan run over California, 41 to 0 in September. So California must be terrible, no matter how good Michigan is—41 to 0 is what you can label quite a shelling. But last week California held Washington to a 7-6 decision, and Washington held Minnesota on practically even terms.

The fact that California beat St. Mary's made the latter team look bad in the public's mind. St. Mary's was losing to a good football team, far better than we happened to bargain for. It was not an off-day for Fordham—it was an on-day for St. Mary's.

"This will happen many times this next month. Don't judge teams by what they happened to show in their first game or two. We are certainly looking for no set-ups against North Carolina, Arkansas, Purdue or N. Y. U."

Two Texans

We ran into a pair of old Texas college chums by the name of Sammy Baugh and Dick Todd, now with the Washington Redskins. Here are two of football's greatest offensive threats—a great passer and a great ball carrier—just as Baugh and Cliff Battles used to be.

They have been two major factors in carrying the Redskins to six straight victories and a strangle hold on the Eastern Championship. Bib Baugh has developed to an even higher degree that artful hand action in passing and he can feint like a James J. Corbett.

The eastern sector in the pro league needs more backfield speed, such as the Bears carry with McAfee, Clark and others. There will be plenty of this to pick from in the college roundup this winter—fast scurrying ball carriers are as thick as autumn leaves.

Hunk Anderson's Dilemma

Hunk Anderson of Rockers' era, one of the best of all the line coaches, now with the Bears, dropped by Hunk still recalled vividly his greatest dilemma.

"I was coaching a southern team at the time," he says. "We had a good southern line and a good northern backfield. But we couldn't win. I soon found the answer. My southern line refused to open up for the northern backs and they were battling each other much harder than they were the opposing teams. Try to get through here, Yankee, my tackle or guard would call back when the signal was given."

"We had to give up practically all plays through the line."

Recalling An Old Song

This 1940 Notre Dame model recalls the title of an old song, "All dressed up and no place to go," which Ben Burt wrote many years ago.

This 1940 model is rated as one of the best Notre Dame ever sent into action. As a rule, the Notre Dame schedule is one of the hardest of the year. Army and Carnegie Tech have nearly always been able opponents. So has Illinois. And so has Southern California.

But in the autumn gloaming of 1940 Army, Illinois, Carnegie Tech and Southern California have all retired to the bosky dell where the whangdoodle mourneth. They just haven't got it.

This leaves Navy, Iowa and Northwestern the only three good teams—and neither Navy nor Iowa look to be strong enough for the trip to South Bend test with piepul, Sagau and six or seven other fast backs working back of a big fast South Bend line. Elmer Layden has been forced to use over 60 men in one game to prevent annihilation.

Cornell is in the same fix from now on until the Penn game with Columbia, Yale and Dartmouth ahead. It's a case of "Take to the hills, boys—the dam has busted."

There may be no such thing as a push-over in modern football.

but for all the ancient slogans the race is usually to the swift and the battle to the strong.

Two Other Good Ones

"Don't overlook two teams that have been moving along in a rush—one of our favorite scouts reports. 'They are Penn State and Detroit. Both are far better than most people know. Both are still unbeaten and each has a star who can match the best on other teams. One is Al Chesquiere, a Detroit back, who can do everything well and in addition is a fine competitor. The other is Leon Gajek, the Penn State center, certainly the best center I've seen in the East. These two men have contributed their full share to an unbeaten season."

This report is verified by all those who have seen Detroit and Penn State play.

Also our North Carolina scout reports that his Tar Heel contingent will furnish Fordham an armful of trouble on Saturday, despite two defeats.

"We happen to have another of those teams which is better than the scores have shown," he says. "This happened a number of times this fall. But November is the test month to prove really where a team belongs."

Liquor Dealers' League

Teams in the upper division scored victories this week in the South End Liquor Dealers' League at the Diamond with the Y. W. Kings scattering 3,519 sticks in winning three from Virginia Tavern, Bills Seafood topping 3,683 up-rights in sweeping over the Burkes and W. G. Conway besting Divico Brothers 2-1.

Three members of the Seafoods had sets of over 500. Sammy DeLuca turned in 265-529. Joe Conway had 229-527 and Bill Crane registered 194-514. White paced the Burkes with 191-511.

The Kingman knocked the five-man game record of 885, established in 1938 by Divico Brothers, in the first brush, and the mark was topped by Bill's Seafood with a five-man count of 896 in its second engagement.

Aello of the Kings had the best set of the day with 250-575. Tracy sparred Virginia Taverns with 493. P. Joyce was high for Conway with 194-471 and Stern led Divico with 461. The scores:

Laurel Out of Pimlico Special For Empire Race

Leaves Only Challenged and Can't Wait Entries In Feature

LAUREL, Oct. 29.—Charles S. Howard today notified the Maryland Jockey Club that his good 3-year-old colt, Mioland, is definitely out of the Pimlico Special to be run on Friday.

The son of Mio D'Arenzo and Iolanda will remain in New York to run in the $20,000-added Westchester Handicap, which will feature Empire City's card on Saturday.

Mioland's withdrawal, which had been predicted by folks close to the sport, leaves the Special a match race between William L. Brann's Challeon and Myron Seiznick's Can't Wait.

The latter won the $15,000-added Washington Handicap here last Saturday, but is the "underdog" for the Special. It is believed that Challeon will go to the post at odds of less than 3 to 5.

Doubtful Starter In Bowie

Maryland Jockey Club officials said that Mioland probably will be shipped to Pimlico to run in the $20,000-added Bowie Handicap on Friday, Nov. 15. However, I believe that the West Coast runner will pass up a meeting of Challeon in that race just as he passed up the Special.

Many horsemen and officials believe that Mioland passed up the Special for fear that a victory over Challeon or Can't Wait would cause their charges to pick up much weight for the $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap this winter.

The Bowie presents the same setup. If Mioland should defeat Challeon he would move up in the handicappers' ratings. Howard is dead set on winning the Santa Anita for the third consecutive time.

Good Field In Westchester

It is likely that Mioland will be the favorite in the Westchester. Nevertheless, a good field will go to the post. According to the work tabs from New York, Salamita, Voliant, Hash, Sickle, T. Honey, Cloud and Astelwood are being pointed for the contest.

In Hash, the Howard runner will face another horse which was invited to run in the Special and which turned down the offer. Hash has been beaten on two successive Saturdays in New York.

Dog Became Tangled Up In Horse's Feet In Race

The fans who lost their money on P. J. Mormile's Wood Blaze in the seventh race yesterday can hang most of the blame for their choice's defeat on the black-and-white dog, which ran across the track at the three-eighths pole and was tangled up between Wood Blaze's flying feet.

Bobby Merritt, who rode Wood Blaze, said that his mount's front legs hit the dog with terrific force and he thought for a minute that he was going down.

Wood Blaze was just beginning to move up to the leaders when he came in contact with the dog. Three horses in back of Wood Blaze also hit the poach, which was carried off the track.

Peters Vacationing on Coast

Jockey Maurice Peters, contract rider for the Foxcatcher Farm, has hung up his tack for the remainder of the Fall season and will not be seen in silks again until the Winter season on the West Coast gets under way.

Pete said he is going to the Foxcatcher Farm to breeze yearlings and to go coon hunting several nights before leaving for California.

Nemeroff League

Clean sweeps were the order in the Nemeroff loop as the Reds made it three from the Giants and the Tigers dithered from the Yankees. The Dodgers took two from the Indians in the only other game.

MR. AND MRS. H. C. MACKLEY

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear son, Allen Brown, Passaic, who died two years ago October 30, 1938.

In the graveyard where sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I love so dearly,
In his silent lonely grave.

Gone dear Allen, gone forever,
How I miss your smiling face,
But you left me to remember,
None on earth can take your place.

SADLY MISSED BY HIS MOTHER

First Four Men Drawn for Draft Are Married

Four Holding Number 158 Signify Their Willingness To Serve

Allegany county's "first four" in the national draft lottery, held in Washington yesterday, received the news in varied ways but they all signified their complete willingness to serve in defense of their country if necessary.

A News photographer and reporter rounded up the men to take their pictures and get some response from the four as to how they felt about the fact they were first in their respective boards.

The first man interviewed and photographed was William Christopher Twigg, 34, of Dexter place. He was of the opinion the draft was a necessity and said he was proud to be among those called.

Twigg is married and has one child and is employed at the Celanese plant. A trip to Mt. Savage was next undertaken, and Joseph Henry Cessna, who is employed at the Union Mining Company as a night watchman, said he was ready for any eventuality. He remarked that his grandfather, father and older brother had served the United States in the fighting forces and he also was available if needed.

Cessna is married and the father of three children, Joan, Barbara Jean, and Harold. He gave his age as 35.

Interviewed at Plant

Through the cooperation of Celanese officials the other two men were interviewed at the plant last night. John Jacob Pfeiffer, 33, of RFD No. 2 on the Baltimore pike, told how he and his brother were listening to the radio and heard No. 158 called out. John turned to his brother and said "when Bill gets here from Washington let's tell him his number was called." Bill is a brother of the two and when he arrived the kidding boomeranged for he knew John's number was 158.

Pfeiffer is married and has two children, Jane, nineteen months and Joan, who will be four in December. Ralph Thomas Skelly, 22, of Cresaptown, married and the father of a son, Ralph Darrell, age fifteen months, was the last of the "first four" interviewed and his first words when asked his reaction were, "we all should take it in good cheer."

Fellow Workers Broke News

He did not know his number was one of the first four in the county until reporting for work at the plant last night. Fellow workers told him the news which he thought was just some more of their kidding.

Skelly told reporters he figured it was a good cause and was all right as far as he was concerned.

The probability of any of these four men being called immediately is so small as all are married and have children. Under the conscription law this fact will exempt them.

Local Man, Charged With Forgery, Is Ordered Held for Grand Jury

Charles E. Riley, of Cumberland, was ordered held under $500 bond to await action of the January grand jury when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court on a charge of forgery.

Riley, accused of forging the name of Guy S. Boggs on a check with intent to cheat the Liberty Trust Company and Boggs, waived a preliminary hearing and was committed to the county jail.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle preferred the charge.

Sentence Is Suspended On Peddling Charge

Dennis Hile, 212 South Mechanic street, was given a suspended fine yesterday in police court on a charge of peddling without a license.

Officers C. McA. Kime and L. L. Youngblood preferred the charge.

Smith Tells of Problems Facing Administration of the Game Laws

Member of State Game Commission Speaks at Rotary Meeting

Problems and handicaps facing the administration of the fish and game laws of the state were detailed in an address before the local Rotary club yesterday at the Port Cumberland hotel by Fulcher P. Smith, member of the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission.

The handicaps are varied, Smith noted. For example, a game warden may not search the automobile of a suspected violator of the game laws; and if the warden should capture a stray dog that is destroying game he can make no disposition of it and must turn him loose unless he finds the owner. Often the dogs are without owners.

ONE OF THE FIRST—William Christopher Twigg, of 215 Dexter place, was the No. 1 man of Draft Board No. 2, and from the smile on his face as he reads the bulletin board in front of the News-Times office, the news is anything but sad. Twigg is an employee of the Celanese and is married and the father of one child. He remarked that America was wise in building a good defense against any aggressor.

"IS THAT SO?"—Shown above talking on the phone is John Jacob Pfeiffer, 33, of Baltimore pike, whose number was the first drawn from Draft Board No. 1. He is a former member of Company G National Guard and is employed at the Celanese. He heard his number called while listening to the radio but didn't realize it was his until his brother told him. Pfeiffer used to caddy at the Cumberland Country club golf course and is married and the father of two children, Jane, nineteen months old and Joan, who will be four in December.

What's Mrs. Willkie Like? Come See for Yourself

Crowd Keen To See Charming Lady Described as "Utterly Feminine"

Most Cumberland men long ago mentally classified that delightful personality, Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie, as the "Ideal Wife."

They saw her pictures in the papers, noted the alive, intelligent face and neat, trim figure, and were pleased. They read that she was "utterly feminine" and approved. They read that her sole intention in taking a long campaign trip was just to take care of Wendell, and they applauded.

In a word, most men are utterly sold on Mrs. Willkie. As a First Lady, they are secretly convinced that she would combine the charming manners and quiet dignity of Mrs. Coolidge and the rare wit and grace of Dolly Madison.

Most Cumberland women have probably come to the same conclusion. But women, of course, are far more critical in making up their minds about other women than the men. They want to see for themselves.

"THAT'S MY NUMBER"—Ralph Thomas Skelly, 22, of Cresaptown, points to No. 158 which was the first number drawn in the lottery conducted in Washington yesterday, for the purpose of conscripting the nation's man-power. A Celanese employee, Skelly is married and the father of a fifteen-month-old son. Skelly was the first man drawn from Draft Board No. 3.

FIRST IN MT. SAVAGE—From Board No. 4, Joseph Henry Cessna, 35, was drawn as No. 1 man. He was visibly elated at having been drawn as one of the first in the country. "My grandfather, my father and my older brother all fought for the United States and I'm just as willing," Cessna remarked, last night, when interviewed at his home. He is married and the father of three children, Joan, Barbara Jean, and the youngest, Harold, shown sitting on his father's lap. Mr. Cessna is employed as a night watchman by the United Mining Company, in Mt. Savage.

Leonard Warren Will Sing Here

Baritone To Open Concert Association Season Friday Night

Leonard Warren, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Association, will be the first artist for the sixth season of the Cumberland Cooperative Concert Association. He will sing here Friday at 8:30 p. m. at the Allegany high school auditorium.

Following the winning of the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air Warren made his debut in one of the Sunday night concerts and later as the Elder Germont, and so sensational was the response from the public and the press that he was immediately given leading roles.

Aside from his operatic triumphs in New York and on the road tour with the Metropolitan, the young American baritone also has appeared in recital in many sections of the country. He was featured as soloist on the radio series "Echoes of New York" and "Musical Americana."

A. Charles Stewart Makes Strong Pleas For GOP Nominees

Urges Election of Willkie, Nice and Johnson in Public Address

Strong pleas for the election not only of Wendell L. Willkie to the presidency but also of Harry W. Nice to the Senate and Walter P. Johnson to the House of Representatives were made in a public address broadcast here last evening by A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg business man.

In referring to the need for A. Charles Stewart "full-time" man in the House Stewart pointed out that the present Democratic representatives had missed 183 out of 396 roll calls in the Seventy-sixth Congress, for which reason the incumbent was dubbed "The Little Man Who Wasn't There."

Stewart, himself a former candidate for Congress, has had much experience in public affairs, having long been a member and president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Baltimore and Ohio Car Loadings Show Increase

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad handled 54,839 cars of freight during the week ended October 26. Of this total 35,543 were loaded on line and 19,296 were received from connections. This was an increase of 2,452 cars over the preceding week of this year (the week ended October 19) when 52,387 cars were handled consisting of 33,579 cars loaded on line and 18,808 received from connections.

Participants in the mummies' parade will assemble at 7 p. m. on Seymour street, facing Fifth street. Marching will start at 7:30 p. m.

Seek Greatest Membership

Mrs. Henderson stated that the American Red Cross this year will seek its greatest peace-time membership to support growing national defense obligations and added that Norman H. Davis, national chairman, has issued an appeal for one million volunteer workers to carry the annual membership roll call to the nation November 11 to 30.

Davis explained that approximately 500,000 persons take part in Roll Call in years of normal activity. He pointed out that chapters have indicated approximately 600,000 workers already have volunteered for duty during the membership drive.

No goal has been set this year for the national membership total, Davis said. He added that every membership that can be obtained will be needed in widening Red Cross services.

Mrs. Henderson said that 6,000 memberships is the quota assigned to Allegany county by national headquarters.

John Alcun Sides, of Hyndman, is a junior in the department of chemical engineering. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sides.

Throng May Top 20,000 G. O. P. Leaders Predict; Train Arrives at 2:55

G. O. P. Candidate—Wendell L. Willkie will be the main attraction in Cumberland this afternoon when his special train arrives at the Queen City depot at 2:55 p. m. He is now on the last leg of a whirlwind campaign tour that has taken him throughout the nation.

Bouquet Will Be Presented to Presidential Candidate's Wife by the Smith Triplets

The political eyes and ears of America will be trained on Cumberland today for a brief fifteen minutes when Wendell L. Willkie greets a crowd that may exceed 20,000.

The Willkie Special will arrive in Cumberland at 2:55 o'clock. The minute the train stops, members of the Republican Central Committee of Allegany county will board it and officially welcome the Republican candidate.

Mr. Willkie will then be escorted to the rear platform of the train and introduced by Lewis M. Wilson, chairman of the state central committee.

To Present Bouquet Mrs. Willkie will also be introduced. A large bouquet will be presented to her by Cumberland's celebrated triplets, Wilma Rae, Wilma Rita and Wilma Royce Smith. The triplets will present the bouquet on behalf of the state central committee.

Following the brief introductions and formalities, Mrs. Willkie will address the crowd.

Excitement regarding the prospect of seeing and hearing Willkie had reached a feverish pitch in Cumberland last night. As a subject of conversation, the draft was dwarfed in comparison.

Thousands of Cumberland people will be on hand at the Queen City depot this afternoon. Schools will observe a half-holiday. All city and county offices will be closed.

Visitors Expected

Thousands more will pour into Cumberland from all over Western Maryland and the neighboring states of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. One large delegation will come from Bedford, another from Altoona, another from Romney, another from Frostburg. In fact, Republican leaders estimated last night that every city and community in the area would be represented judging by advance inquiries.

The crowd is expected to be predominantly pro-Willkie. But there will be large numbers of undecided voters who will want to look at the candidate as well as hear him.

When Willkie steps out on the rear platform, the feverish excitement of the vast crowd will reach its greatest pitch. When Willkie starts to speak every man, woman and child will be watching his every gesture, movement and expression.

What will he say? It is hard to predict. He may make a statement that will start telephone and telegraph lines buzzing across the continent. This is what makes the every word of a presidential candidate exciting. The nation listens when a candidate for the presidency speaks.

90 Policemen

The rear coach of the 15-car Willkie Special will be located near the Harrison street crossing. The entire area west of Harrison street and up to Baltimore street will be blocked off. The B. & O. is removing all equipment from this vicinity and the crowd will be allowed to surge over the tracks and around the train.

Approximately 90 policemen, including railroad, state and city police, will have charge of the crowd. Chief Oscar A. Eyerman will have forty-four Cumberland officers on the job. At least eighteen state troopers will be detailed to the station. An unannounced number of railroad police will be on duty. Boy Scout troops will assist the officers.

While police are anticipating no disorder, "every precaution" is being taken. Commissioner James Orr said last night.

Merle Thrope, Business Editor, Urges Election of Walter Johnson

Declares "Big Train" Is Well Qualified To Be Representative

Speaking over radio station WMAL, Washington, D. C., last evening, Merle Thrope, editor of the magazine "Nation's Business," strongly recommended the election of Walter P. Johnson, GOP candidate, to the House of Representatives from the Sixth Maryland district.

Thrope, who is a resident of Montgomery county, where he has been registered as an Independent for twelve years, said he has voted the Democratic ticket as often as the Republican and that he has no political aspirations of any kind.

"This is the first political speech I have ever made, the first time I have taken an active part in local politics," declared Thrope. "I have often wondered why it is that we take so little interest in choosing our political servants. I remember my father, as a farmer in Kansas, looking up the references of a man who wanted a job on the farm. He called upon the farmers where the applicant had worked before, to learn what he could about the man before he gave him a job.

"But when it comes to hiring a political servant, to whom we give the power over our very lives and property, we take no such precautions.

"So, as I say, filled with anxiety as to our future I decided to pay some attention to the qualifications and the record of the man who is to represent me in Congress during the next two years.

"I already had before me the record of the present incumbent, Mr. Byron. I found him in accord with the wild and un-American course we have been pursuing, so it remained for me to look up the qualifications of Walter Johnson, the other man who asks me to let (Continued on Page Fourteen)
